This multi-trunked Callophyllum inophyllum is an excellent example of a Northern Territory native enhancing a garden setting.

Mrs. Zeroni is thrilled to have her tree included on the register. The tree was fully mature when she moved into the house in 1963 and estimates its age at over 50 years (in 1989). From 1967-74 she had a child-minding centre here and the children used to eat their afternoon tea under the tree.

Mrs. Zeroni believes that her house was protected by the tree during Cyclone Tracy as it was the only house still standing in the street (they were all government type dwellings). The house still had the original roof.
